President's Message

Stewardship, the job of supervising or taking care of something, such as an organization or property, is a large task for our small profession to be responsible for.

MICHAEL HERNANDEZ
PRESIDENT

Our mission, our goal is to be stewards of the land and everything on it. Stewardship, the job of supervising or taking care of something, such as an organization or property, is a large task for our small profession to be responsible for. We should promote and advocate for our profession every opportunity we make or are part of, no matter how insignificant the event may be. If our national chapter promotes particular events, we should pay attention and partake in them. To do so is logical.

We have all complained or stated the same old line about the initial impression that is held by people who do not have an inkling of an idea of what Landscape Architects do. If we take the time to tell people what we can achieve, someday, that statement will be history.

Be an advocate, represent all the hard work that you have put behind you, and be a champion of landscape architecture.

Sincerely,

Michael

For Universities, even the waste receptacles are a source of knowledge.

Relay data means a cleaner campus and city alike – on the ground, in the air and in the water.

VICTOR STANLEY RELAY™

STREET LEVEL SENSING™ & WASTE CONTROL SERVICE

Litter from overflowing waste bins poses a real pollution risk to local estuaries. Now Relay-equipped bins provide valuable real-time data on everything from fullness to street-level conditions, sending alerts before the bins can overflow. Combined with lower truck emissions from more efficient collection routes, Relay data leads to a cleaner, more beautiful environment all around.

What can we do for your campus?

Park(ing)Day

PARK IT UP!

Even though our Park(ing) Day had to be canceled, we're excited to share some good news—we still created a mini park!

While our original plan was to showcase two parklets and have organizations share their expertise on therapeutic spaces, planning, and environmental stewardship, we're so grateful for the support we received to make this mini park a reality

Thank you to everyone who helped out, showed up, or cheered us on from afar. We can't wait to plan the next one and hope you'll be a part of it!

A big shout out to:
Master Gardeners,
RTC of Southern Nevada, All-In Clark County,
American Horticultural Therapy Association,
Park Pro Playgrounds,
Special Projects Nursery,
Star Nursery,
Life Space Gardens,
Earth Green Landscapes, Blick Art Materials, Parking Reform Network!

for their incredible contributions! Your involvement truly made a difference.

Stay tuned for more updates, and as always, feel free to reach out with any questions or feedback. We appreciate you!

recap

Inclusive Play Matters:

Innovating Outdoor Play
Destinations for People of All Ages and Abilities

Can a playground be accessible and inclusive?

What are the differences?

What makes them different? Aren't they the same?

No, think about it, accessible just means that children and adults can access certain components of a playground. For example, a transfer platform allows children to approach the platform to lift themselves up and get on the playground equipment. Think about that though, does every child have the ability to lift themselves up???

A playground that is inclusive is heavily designed and its elements include multiple levels of engagement. Thankfully, Jennie, a CORE Community Outreach Director, guided us through the 7 principles of Inclusive Playground Design. Jennie gave us examples of the playground elements that are considered accessible yet do not provide value to children who may have disabilities. In summary, do research before you design a playground for everyone. Think about the five senses and include elements that utilize them. If this is done correctly, a playground will be exciting and engaging for all visitors.

Thank you to Jennie, Tyler, Igor, and Corey, for bringing a wonderful topic and presentation to our chapter! Thank you to Top Bar Restaurant for having us and the wonderful food and drinks.
